FAQ

Why is USACHPPM a good place to work after I graduate from college/first job?

USACHPPM, the Army's Public Health agency, has unique career development opportunities not available within the public sector. USACHPPM retains a diversified, talented workforce by creating a culture of collaboration to produce high-quality, interesting projects and by providing extensive travel and training opportunities.

Are civilians required to go to "boot camp" or wear military uniforms?

Civilians work alongside Soldiers, but are not subjected to the same requirements such as going to boot camp or wearing military uniforms.

How can I make myself a competitive candidate for a job at USACHPPM?

USACHPPM looks for candidates with the will to learn and grow. Advanced degrees and job experience is a plus, but government internships are available. For opportunities about non-government internships with USACHPPM visit Oak Ridge Associated Universities, <http://www.orau.org/maryland/>

What jobs are available?

The most current and reliable information is available via the Internet. Department of Army vacancies are available at www.cpol.army.mil and government-wide vacancies are available at www.usajobs.gov.

How do I prepare a resume?

It is recommended that you submit a resume at the beginning of your job search. The Department of the Army Job Application Kit is available at <http://cpol.army.mil/library/employment/jobkit/jobkit.pdf>. Once a resume is on file, you can easily nominate yourself for vacancies by clicking on the self-nomination button from the job announcement. The websites www.cpol.army.mil and www.usajobs.gov have a section that can guide you on where to submit your resume. You may update your resume at anytime; however, only the latest resume is active.
